A Roman Boy Author: Joe Sheridan

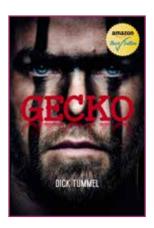

Lucius Decius Verus is the son of a Roman officer, Marcus Decius Verus, and his wife Camilla. They live in the north of England when that country is ruled by Rome around the time when Hadrian's Wall is being built, about 122 AD. When he is only a few months old the couple, while driving through a wild storm, negligently lose the child from the carriage they are travelling in. The child, Lucius, is found by a local woman, Mora, who decides to keep the child. And she names the baby boy Corio.

Camilla blames Marcus for the loss of her baby, the one love in her life, and she leaves him and goes south to live with her sister. Mora is later murdered by her husband, Vero, when Corio is three years old. So, Mora's friend, Liva, and her husband, Agar, take over the responsibilities of raising Corio as their son. The boy grows up with his adopted parents, learning to farm while interacting with some of the Roman population, learning a little Latin in the process. When Corio is fourteen years old, unbeknown to him, his natural father Marcus is injured in battle and his mother Virginia, a tall, bossy woman, comes to look after her son and decides to stay indefinitely. When she is visiting a friend, Natalia, she sees the boy there and is startled by his likeness to her son Marcus.

She experiences racial prejudice, but her beauty leads her into modelling and soon catches the eye of a London agent, Paul LeClair. However, her life begins to spiral out of control as successive men seek to possess and control her, often with deadly consequences.

From outback Western Australia to London, this is an exciting, fast paced story about passion, murder and cruelty of human greed.

Cliffs of ochre . Trilogy Book 2 Author: Don Hoult

Chloe, the illegitimate daughter of a cattle baron inherits vast landholdings in the Kimberley and Pilbara regions of Western Australia. Unbeknown to her, the wealth has been accumulated by her father's criminal actions brought on by the desperation to survive which saw him dragged into a conspiracy from which there was no escape.

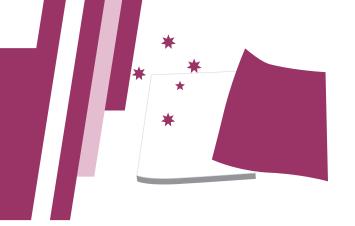

Chloe had been brought up on Venus Down, ignorant of her true identity and unacknowledged by Henry Boyce, her natural father. The one person she identified with was Gramps, her supposed aboriginal grandfather. On his mysterious disappearance and the death of one of Boyce's adopted twin sons, she smells death and leaves Venus Downs.

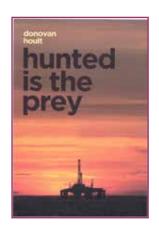

In Europe she achieves fame and fortune as an international model, but murder and violation follow her as she fights to survive. On the death of her lover she decides to abandon her career and the avaricious intentions of her murderous husband and return to Venus Downs.

As with the author's first novel in this trilogy, "Cliffs of Ochre" follows "The Eye of the Rainbow Serpent," as a reflection of the human condition of exploitation and greed.

Once a Splendid Coin Author: Stephen Burns

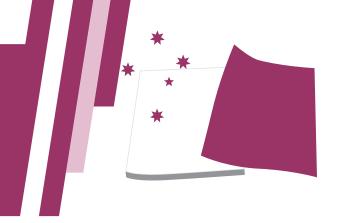

The image of the Merino ram that was struck upon the 1938 shilling has intrigued me since I started jackarooing on a Merino stud at Hay in late 1974. It has taken me nearly forty years to satisfy that curiosity. Early in the new year of 1975, I was among a few jackaroos invited to lunch at Burrabogie, a large sheep station east of Hay, which nestled closely within a bend of the Murrumbidgee River before running south and away over the mostly treeless Old Man Plain. Burrabogie had been founded as an offshoot of the more famous parent stud Uardry, across the river on the northern bank of the Murrumbidgee. Until it was dispersed in 1966, Burrabogie was a Merino stud of significance though without the influence of its parent. With the passing of the old studmaster, Neilson Mills in January 1967, by 1975 the main pastoral activities on Burrabogie centered on the commercial Merino sheep managed by Andrew Mills, son of Neilson; and an Australian Stock Horse stud operated by Andrew's wife Pam.

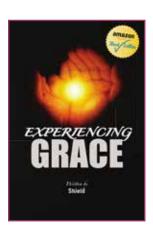

Yet the aura of the old stud lingered in the fabric of the station sheds held within the simple bend in the river and the memorabilia that decorated the rooms and corridors of the homestead.

The many pictures recorded the triumphs of the show and sale ring of the rams bred by Neilson Mills, but the entire room was dominated by an enormous portrait of a ram's head which hung above the mantelpiece. At the time I thought it was a painting of the ram which I had vaguely heard was the model for the image of the ram on the shilling coin. Ever since, I have carried the thought that the portrait must hide an interesting story.

John's gospel and the formula behind the myth of Jesus.

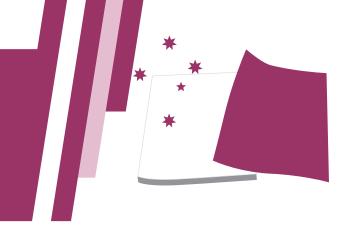

Author: Greg O'Shea.

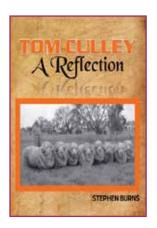

John's Gospel and the Formula behind the Myth of Jesus is about a set of ideas that largely dictated the form and content of John's Gospel, and profoundly influenced the three Synoptic Gospels. Far from the simple narrative it seems to be, John's Gospel is a highly complex work geared to the depiction of Jesus as a type of cosmic figure.

To this end its author draws on astrology, the annual cycle of Jewish festivals, symbolism taken from the Qabalah, and a section of Genesis. The book examines clues that Qabalah and Hellenestic astrology were already in existence at the time of writing of Genesis. John's Gospel and the Formula behind the Myth of Jesus also looks at evidence that the true nature of John's Gospel has been known for some time.

Biography

Tom Culley Author: Stephen Burns

Throughout the history of the evolution of the Australian Merino, the creative efforts of the few impact studmasters has been critical. By any account Tom Culley is regarded as one of the greatest breeders of Merino sheep this country has seen.

The genetic impact of the rams he bred upon the national flock has been enormous. The distinctive nature of his sheep is no less significant. With their terrific size, and long-stapled and soft medium-strong wool fleeces of great bulk, they were immediately recognisable.

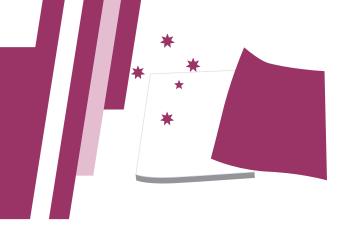

Whether on the catwalk, or in the sale pen, Merino rams bred by Tom Culley, 'the last of the great studmasters of the older generation', had infinite appeal. In successfully blending two strains of Merino, 'grafting the Collinsville type onto a productive Peppin base', Tom Culley proved the Wonga Merino a powerful and distinctive type of wool producer in the accepted Australian style.

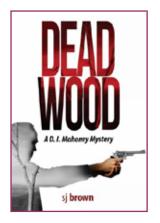

By not following the traditional method of breeding 'like to like', Culley deliberately challenged the accepted pattern of over a century of breeding Merino sheep. Mating his sheep 'unlike to unlike', and concentrating on wool type and constitution, and accepting minor conformation flaws, he established an independent bloodline, a strain breeding true to type, and in every way, unique.

Dedicated to his chosen career, methodical in his method and scrupulous in his manner, Tom Culley had a vision that soared.

The first story (Teddy from then to when) is about my hero Teddy, and gives a brief outline of his life up to when he puts together his team of abalone poachers.

The second story (Whale of a tale) introduces two 'down and outs' Louie and Gazza. They're also poachers, and they set an illegal net and a young whale swims into it and becomes entangled.

The third story (Teddy and the Japanese submarine) is about two Japanese brothers trying to find out if their father died a hero or not and they enlist Teddy and his crew to help locate the submarine. I go on to introduce two lesbians who run a coffee shop/plant nursery.

The fourth story (The chase) sees Detective Jack and Karl trying to track down Jack's runaway wife and also sees Tiny the huge security guard fall in love with Leckie, Deans partner.

The fifth storey (New Zealand Star Bank) is about Barry falling in love with Detective Jack's wife and giving her a job working on his boat. He talks Teddy into diving on the extremely dangerous New Zealand Star Bank.

The sixth storey (The two Tom's) is about Tom's father squaring up for Sandy being raped by the two loan sharks.

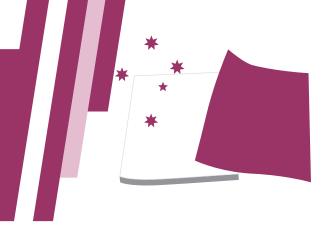

The seventh story (Muddy hits a snag) is about when the Bikie gang try to stand over Olivia and her lesbian partner.

Then there's the epilogue, hopefully this ties everything up and prepares the reader to look forward to Cold Gold 3.

Wreck: the fatal voyage of the Charles Eaton and the search for survivors.

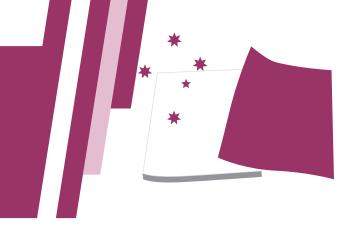

Author: Warwick Hirst.

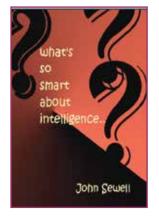

In August 1834 the barque Charles Eaton was wrecked on the Great Barrier Reef. Five of the crew made off with the only seaworthy life boat and eventually reached Timor. The rest of the crew and six passengers escaped on rafts built from the wreckage. All but four boys met a grisly fate at the hands of Torres Strait Islanders. Two of the boys were sold to a family from Murray Island for two bunches of bananas, the other two were never seen again. Although news of the wreck and the possibility of survivors reached England early in 1835 more than a year would pass before a rescue mission was organised.

Warwick Hirst has been published in the Bulletin, The Week End Australian, The Age and GEO. He is the author of Great Convict Escapes in Colonial Australia and The Man Who Stole the Cyprus, and edited My Dear, Dear Betsy, a collection of Australian letters. He was formerly Curator of Manuscripts at the State Library of NSW where he curated six major exhibitions including The Governor: Lachlan Macquarie, 1810-1822.

What's So Smart About Intelligence?

Author: John William Sewell

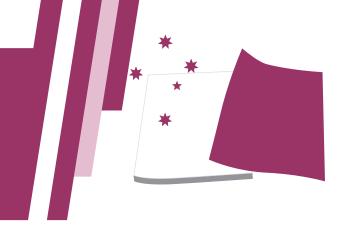

This book is about students finding, and reaching, their potential. It is definitely not about everyone becoming an academic! Or about everyone going to university! It is about each person giving themselves the opportunity to choose. So many students end up doing trades, or taking sales jobs, not because that is what they want, but because that is all they think they can accomplish. We need great trades-people, great sales assistants, great workers in all kinds of areas of employment; if you choose such a position, rather than feel that you have to do it because you have no other choice, then you have a much better chance of being successful in that employment and ultimately doing a great job at it.

My desire is:

- To encourage all learners to achieve their best with smart and hard work,
- To motivate the love of learning,
- To argue against the widespread and long-held view that intelligence is fixed & unchanged and that it can be measured.
- To present arguments that "intelligence" is changeable & modifiable and how it is impacted and influenced by many varying factors that can impede learning and academic outcomes.
- To demonstrate that through smart-hard work and perseverance, learners can improve, achieve, succeed and, above all, love learning.

All for the Love of a Horse is about Catherine, a young 14 year old girl's involvement with several horses; and a very clever old pony which outwits her and others on several occasions doing incredible things based on fact. Mr Samm is their close old trainer friend (Mr Telford) who features heavily, as does Terry (me) his apprentice jockey. The story develops the bond between Catherine and Terry, along with their mutual love of horses, (which are based on real horses and events) with the drama of Catherine's accident added; along with the contribution each character makes to help her recover. How this all unfolds, and the tragedies that lead up to the accident, is what will enthral most readers, as will the artwork I plan to add if necessary.

That is, until things in his life begin to change and he starts to look at things through different eyes.

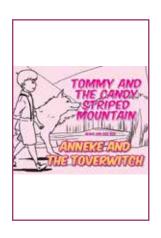

Tommy, an eleven year old boy, had heard about the Candy Striped Mountain where there was a city on the other side with streets paved with gold, and people didn't have to work.

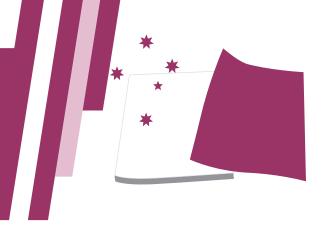

With his father sick and out of work, Tommy thought it was his duty to go and get some of that gold for his father's medicine. Against all odds, and the help of many animals, Tommy reached the mountain. One of the animals was an old wolf who'd slept with him to keep warm. Tommy thought it was a dog, but noticing it was a wolf, he asked, 'Are you going to eat me now?' The wolf laughed, and said, 'Don't be ridiculous, that only happens in fairy tales.

Talk together: walking the journey with our adolescent.

Author: Tak Ananda.

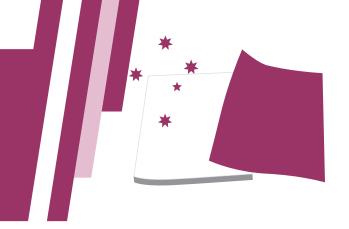

This book is designed to equip parents to meet the many challenges that adolescence face in life. Such challenges include low self-worth, teenage defiance, peer group pressure, family discord and family disconnection, self-image, teenage anger, sibling rivalry, cyber bullying, drugs and alcohol, and mental health vulnerability. The author is interested in how people communicate and the underlying messages expressed, often below their level of awareness. The author employs the concept of influence rather than control, purposeful direction rather than restriction, and understanding rather than discord.

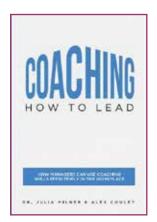

The book discards the concept of self-worth as a means to encourage. Rather, a different dialogue is cultivated that promotes meaningful connections, family harmony, healthy boundaries and individuality and autonomy. The aim here is to harness a young person's innate gifts and to promote personal qualities. As parents reflect in the change in dialogue, what transpires is a more meaningful and purposeful direction. Self-fulfilment arises from the presence of awareness. As self-transformation begins to take place there is a movement towards being real, being authentic and, being true to their inner self.

Whilst this book may be of significant value to parents and to young people, it is also beneficial to anyone who is on a journey of self-discovery

His nightmare has travelled on the ship with him.

Historical fiction

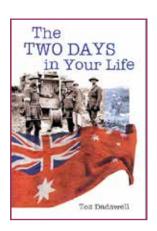

Links in the Chain Author: Caroline Cooper.

Oh for a time machine to drop me back into the 1850s.

How wonderful to walk the streets, listen to the chatter, the sound of horse hooves and carriage wheels, to look at the clothes and pretty parasols, feel the 1850 breeze on my face, experience summers, winters, rain and snow, just as they did. Despite the fact that those living at the time were constrained by Victorian moral principles, these were people whose human desires and feelings are similar to ours. In their hearts beat love and hate, desire, depression, ambition, secrets, jealousy, pride, humility. And in Hobart Town, struggling to emerge from its convict reputation in the 1850s and 1860s there was the need to keep one's past very carefully hidden, the Victorian equivalent of "keeping up appearances", the need to invent a new persona. Even on the far side of the world from England, a strict class system operated, where appearances were clearly as important as they are today.

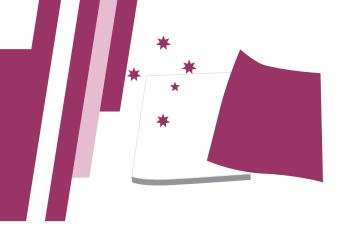

The Two Days in your Life Author: Toz Dadswell

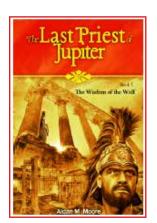

The Two Days in Your Life is a fictional story that takes place in a true setting. The Great War (1914 – 1918) did happen and Australian soldiers were involved in the fighting from April 1915 until the cessation of hostilities in 1918. The battles such as Bullecourt, Pozieres, Ypres did take place and Australian soldiers were involved and the cities/towns of Ameins, Corbie, Lahoussoye and Querrieu are also real.

No doubt there were men serving in the 1st Australian Imperial Force who had names similar to those who appear in the novel but the names of the fictitious characters were chosen at random and that is what they are; fictitious. Although it is a novel the story is intended to be a tribute to the signallers of the Australian Army who have from the Boer War to the present day carried out the important role of maintaining the lines of communication so that the Commanders in the field have been able to make informed decisions on when and how to deploy their troops. At times maintaining the lines has meant working under extremely difficult and dangerous conditions.

The Last Priest Of Jupiter. Book 1, THE WISDOM OF THE WOLF Author: Aidan M. More

The Roman Empire in the Fourth Century AD is a long-established superpower, its military might overwhelming, its weaknesses still invisible. It threatens the last free Celtic society in Europe – the Scoti of Ireland and Caledonia. Brendan Dathi of the Í Fiacra clan, with his Druidic mentor, travels to the legionary base at Deva (Chester) in Britannia from which the Roman invasion of Ireland will be launched. His mission is to learn how to defeat or sabotage it as his uncle Niall, King of Ulster, did thirteen years before.

Book:: The Bale-fires of Brecon, Book 2 of the Wisdom of the Wolf.

In 395 AD trusted barbarian officer Datius Ficarus surveying Britannia on behalf of Rome discovers a conspiracy to seize the Province and partition it, subjecting the Romanised Britons and the industrious Angli of the East to a Danish King and Saxon warlords, and the West with Caledonia and Hibernia to a Scots military empire allied to a narrow Christian cult of black-clad zealots. Dathi is stalked by agents of the King of Scots and struggles to inform the Province of its danger. He finds love in the West and danger in the North.

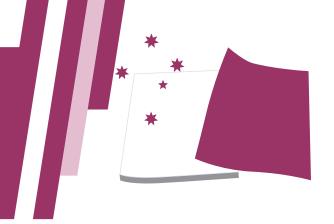

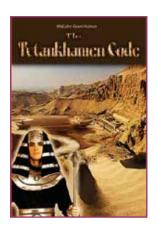

Book The Screaming Stones of Tara Book 3 Wisdom of the Wolf.

In 405 AD trusted barbarian officer Datius Ficarus in his last year of service to Rome tours the Eastern Empire to raise men and money for war against the Goths. He also has a secret mission from the Druid Council of Erin to get books and inks from the endangered Great Library of Alexandria. He meets Hypatia, Cyril with his fanatical black-clad monks, and the Jewish Diaspora. Discharged from Roman service he proceeds to Tara to claim the High-kingship of Ireland and later is present at the fall of Rome to the Goths. That event is described.

A The Tutankhamen code: Author: Malcolm Grant Hutton

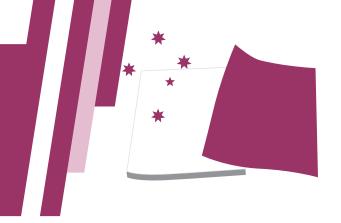

When Claude Tarba showed off a family heirloom in a crowded Arabian restaurant in Melbourne, that simple act of pride among friends didn't go unnoticed. It set in motion a journey through the little known high mountain country of The Yemen; then on to the Italianate City of Asmara in the Ancient land of Eritrea and a hi-jacking, which landed him in Western Turkey. Eventually after a number of risky adventures that ok him to the far southern reaches of Egypt, he found himself committed to a treasure quest which if proved successful would change the future perception of the human race for the next couple of millennia.

Clues uncovered in the Tomb of the God King Tutankhamen entrance our unwitting hero and his new friends, committing them all through something more than curiosity to a trail of intrigue, with villains popping up everywhere, intent on stopping them from achieving their main goal, the installation of Claude as an honorary new Pharaoh.

Crazy Bitch: A Portrait of Domestic Violence? Author: Danielle Neves

This is a story of an abusive relationship, told through a series of letters separated by short news clippings. The letters are written by the abuser from prison in correspondence with this brother, and by the victim as a form of therapeutic journaling. The characters are intimately revealed in these letters through their own words and thoughts and those of their partner. The general characteristics of both abusers and victims are explored in a revealing way, as the main characters speak about themselves and each other. This book is a competition winner and highly praised by the judges. A story of domestic violence, portrayed through a series of letters from the victim to her abuser, and the abuser to his brother. Very well written. Neves' language for both of the main characters is believable and reads as if she is very aware of the psychology of domestic violence. Using the letter format is a different and brilliant way to approach this topic, which is much more prevalent than most people realize. This book is almost impossible to put down once you start it? It is an extremely compelling story, from both the abuser and the victim's viewpoints. The end is shocking and a really creative twist to the story.

A Peg leg Hero. Author: Bob Pearson

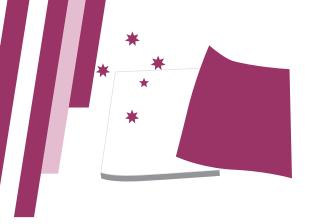

This book is a sequel to Bob Pearson's first biography 'A PENNY ON FRIDAY' when he recounts his childhood in Lancashire from 1928 - 1945. 'Peg Leg Hero' covers the period 1945 - 1961, a book that not only allows ex soldier readers to reminisce, as he describes post WWII era then into the Cold war and the Far East turmoils from Korea to Malaya, then a British mandate. All written frankly and with humour and often degenerating himself. -He recaptures his days in the army - a life he loved and quite often steered close to trouble; strangely enough he skirted it time and time again which made him feel he had a guardian angel of sorts.

He always enjoyed the fast life - being a Commando at 17 years of age and later in the Military Police with the famous 6th Airborne Division in Haifa; he was one of the last soldiers to leave in May 1948 as part of the Army's rear party. He was happy to serve wherever and it was mostly in foreign parts - He closed his military life as an investigator with the Special Investigation Branch of the R.M.P

In the foreword, an old friend writes: I thoroughly enjoyed it; Bob I am so envious at the ease with which you describe scenes and recall details of long ago events with such clarity. As I read your book I felt as if I was present watching each event unfold.

Memoir

Corridors: A Verse Memoir Author's Full Name: Leila Marion Field

In this memoir a woman now in her eighties looks back to a childhood and adolescence lived in the turbulent context of England in the 1930's and 1940's.

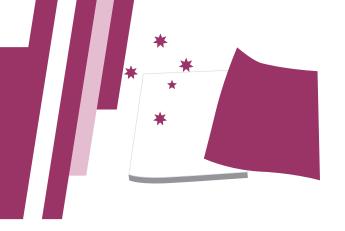

It is a young girl's story of finding her own way through the complex choices and changes that occur, and in this is also a deeper perspective of social history, all conveyed in the unique literary voice of poetry.

About Author.

Leila Marion Field was born in Sussex, England in 1929. She has been a permanent resident of Australia for many years and has divided her time between the UK and Australia. Her working life was a varied one, firstly to do with books and music retailing, then a midlife career change to training as a professional chef, later teaching at the Cordon Bleu school in London and operating her own catering business. Her family includes two daughters, six grandchildren, and their children.

Memoir/History

Musings at Deaths Door, second edition.

Author: Raja Arasa Ratnam

This is an extensive memoir by author Raja Arasa Ratnam. It covers the author's formative life in Pre World War 2 in British Malaya and under the Japanese Military Occupation of Malaya during WW2, followed by his travails in a racist post-war White Australia.

After more than six decades of a highly participatory and contributory life as an adult in Australia, the author offers a supportive bicultural perspective of the land of his adoption. His in depth analysis leads him to the conclusion that Australia can yet be a beacon to its neighbouring peoples through its egalitarianism, and its fabled fair go ethos, in spite of some significant deterioration of its society through the on going breakdown of family, and a significant diminution of personal respect for one's fellow humans.

The scope of the narrative is wide, the analysis is deep, the commentary is incisive. Believing that Australia, a satrapy of the USA, is attempting to punch above its weight internationally, the author a communitarian small-I liberal advocates that it become part of its protector, with obvious benefits. It will become a republic, voters will elect their president directly, welfare dependency will be replaced by personal initiative and effort, and hopefully the Vatican's social policies submerged by secularism.

Pride in Australia's success in integrating the wide range of multi-ethnic immigrants of the past half century, and in Asian spirituality countering the excessive materiality of the individualistic Ultra West, underpin these end-of-life musings.

The Secret Energy of Your Body. An Intuitive Guide to Healing, Health and Wellness

Amazon Best Seller 2015

You can heal yourself and others using your own intuition which is the inner ability to sense energy. Energy is the root of body and mind. We all consist of and surround by an energy field. When energy flows through the body properly, you are in a state of health.

When there is an energetic disturbance in the body, a disease state is created.

Illnesses manifest in the body's energy field before they manifest in the physical body. And healing occurs in the energy field before it becomes apparent in the physical body.
